

El-Osta Platform (Interview)

Interview Model :

The interviews were conducted through field visits rather than inside a company. We visited different locations and spoke directly with people and craftsmen to gain realistic insights.

We started by interviewing end users (customers) from different social and economic backgrounds, ranging from low-income areas to high-end neighborhoods, to understand their needs and challenges when searching for handyman services.

Next, we interviewed craftsmen and technicians by visiting small workshops and maintenance companies to understand the difficulties they face in finding consistent work and managing their jobs.

Finally, interviews were conducted with contractors and potential investors to understand their role in managing craftsmen and projects, their operational challenges, and their interest in investing in a digital platform that improves organization and increases returns.
